“ Dear God. You have known me and loved me from the first moment of my life. Now you are with me at the time of Bruce's death. Thank you for always being with me. I know you will receive Bruce into your presence and care for him eternally. Give us strength and comfort as we let go of Bruce and he moves into your hands. Let us be assured that one day we will meet again. In faith and love we commit Bruce to you who are eternal love.

Amen.

“ *Dear Missy, Tom, Denise and Clarke Family,

Our thoughts and prayers are with you during this trying time. May the Lord give you comfort and peace that passes understanding.
Missy- We did not know Bruce well but, he must have been a great man to raise such a wonderful daughter. We Love You.*

“ Hey missy, so when i heard the only thing i could think to say is the words of some one else. When King Lear dies in Act V, do you know what Shakespeare has written? He's written "He dies." That's all, nothing more. No fanfare, no metaphor, no brilliant final words. The culmination of the most influential work of dramatic literature is "He dies." It takes Shakespeare, a genius, to come up with "He dies." And yet every time I read those two words, I find myself overwhelmed with dysphoria. And I know it's only natural to be sad, but not because of the words "He dies." but because of the life we saw prior to the words.
