

Jennifer (White) Benaitis

November 16, 1969 - November 13, 2021

Jennifer “Jenn” (White) Benaitis, 51, died peacefully on Saturday, November 13th, 2021 holding the hand of her husband, Jeffrey Benaitis, after a courageous 21-year battle with cancer. She had a beautiful life that was cut way too short. Here is a piece of her story.

Jenn was born on November 16th, 1969 in Hartford, CT to parents Paul and Kathy White. She grew up in New Hartford, CT, where she decided to later stay and raise her family. She raised her three children, Olivia M Piana, Taylor Benaitis, and Jack Benaitis, with her husband of 20 years. She was a lover of her dogs, a friend to so many, and a Pottery Barn fanatic.

Even from a young age, she was a fiery spirit. She was a stubborn fighter who was forced to fight a battle that no one should have to. She carried an undeniable strength in her that she worked hard to instill in her children, and to be here for them. While she could no longer win her fight, she stayed as long as her body would allow. She spent her remaining days surrounded by her family in the comfort of her home, and we hope, knowing how loved she was.

Jenn was a gift to this world, and she will be terribly missed. Her wish was that there would not be a service, as a courtesy to her family. There will be an online memorial available, when you can share a memory or note of sympathy for the family: jenniferwbenaitis.memorial.
