“ Mark Giuliette: a true gem.

I first met Mark sometime in the late 70s. He was working at the Dept of Health and I was at the Dept of Consumer Protection doing product safety work. Urea Formaldehyde Foam Insulation (UFFI) was a new product causing respiratory problems for some. Consumer Protection needed the instrumentation and expertise of the health dept to document conditions. Enter Mark; sling psychrometer in hand. Mark would walk through the rooms swinging this 3 ft baton at the end of a rope around his head like a lasso to get temperature and humidity. The man was inquisitive, confident, and easy to work with. Of course we had to get him from the soulless grasp of the DPH. 🙄

He entered Consumer Protection, (late 70s?) as a Product Safety Inspector. Product Safety is not for those looking for routine. Mark was tireless and creative in his quest for answers. A consumer complains that a spray caulk caused a rash. Next thing I see, Mark has sprayed the chalk on his wrist and covered it with a bandage to see if he would react. Or, a consumer complains about the safety of a “Chinese fighting star” sold with the toys. Mark brings a sample back to the office. Instructions say to throw it - he throws it - at the wall. Thunk. Like big thunk. Chinese fighting star is embedded ½ inch deep in the wall. Mark and I look wide-eyed at each other. Yeah, not a toy. Can’t remember what we told Public Works about the hole in the wall but Mark did inform the retailer that it must be displayed with sporting goods. And then there’s the time Mark and I are climbing on the roof of the State Office Building trying to get the broadcast signal from Greenwich mean time broadcast so we can test pacifiers. Climbing on the roof? Who does that? Mark was a passionate advocate for the consumer.

Ah, but then, as so often happens with those that are invaluable, he’s needed to step into a new program and align statute and processes. Product Safety may have lost an Inspector but the new car lemon law – first in the nation – had gained an advocate and shepherd. Mark was quiet confidence. There were the legal challenges in the early days and detailed reporting requirements to track and submit – Mark was there, monitoring and adjusting. The Connecticut New Car Lemon Law has a sterling reputation. Mark's steady hand is written in the foundation for all to see.

I will miss you, my friend. I will miss the way you brought people together. I will miss the way you embraced challenges. I will miss the wide perspective you brought to situations. I will miss your gatherings. I will be your recipes. You are an angel my friend, of course you walk with them.

“ It is hard to believe that you are gone. I moved to New Jersey in 2015 and did not have many friends in the area. You always opened your home for holiday meals when I would come to visit my aunt in Connecticut. I would always ask what to bring, and you would always reply just yourself. That is just how you were, gracious and thoughtful whether you were inviting people into your home or working at the food pantry.

Above all I admired your dedication to God and your church. You will be missed my friend.

“ Mark and I became friends over twenty years ago, and discovered we both liked old movies, British comedy, and cats. Mark was a man of deep faith who demonstrated that faith by caring for his community, especially those in need. He opened his heart and home to so many, and made new friends along the way. If Mark was your friend, you knew you could count on him. He showed up ready to help. To Stephen, Gail, and all his family, I offer my condolences. The light Mark brought to this world cannot be diminished. I love you Mark, and I miss you.

“ This is the passing of a sweet, kind, soft-spoken man, and very good-looking I must say.

I met Mark many years ago when we both shopped at the Salvation Army on Arch St., in New Britain.

When you see the same person once a week shopping where you are shopping you begin to have conversations and get to know a little bit about each other and talk about the treasures you might have found in one of the local thrift stores.

And through the years I would see Mark and Stephen at the NBMAA where Mark and I volunteered. We periodically bumped into each other at some of the local activities in New Britain. And Mark was always so openly friendly and welcoming to say hello.

I last saw Mark when St. Mark's was merging with St. James Church in Farmington and Mark was in charge of divesting some items from the church, and and always, Mark was so friendly and made you feel he was so happy to see you.

My heartfelt condolences to Mark's husband, Stephen and the entire family.

“ When I think of Mark, I see him as one of the three Kings. After service, when I gave him a kiss on the cheek, his reply: "A kiss on the cheek may be quite continental, but diamonds are a king's best friend." HE was a best friend, and such a wonderful person. He gave so much to so many. Peace be with you, you king of a guy. -- Mary Anne

Mark was always warm and engaging whenever we met. We were not closest friends, but he always made me feel comfortable and appreciated. I wish Stephan comfort knowing Mark was loved as he is. So many are thinking of you both today and for a very long time. Wishing you peace.

I knew Mark for years while affiliated with the International Association of Lemon Law Administrators. He was so dedicated to the organization before and after retirement. Mark enjoyed the IALLA conference mugs. I helped him replace some missing ones of his collection. Mark was and in my memory will always be a kind-hearted, sensitive, uplifting kind of guy with a magnetic personality. I so enjoyed conversing with him. Condolences with heartfelt support sent to Stephen, family and friends. Mark, we'll always love you. Peace my friend. Polly from Vermont

I knew Mark in his capacity as Director of Connecticut's Lemon Law Program-it was the nation's first and he demonstrated great leadership and advocacy for Ct. lemon law consumers. He was a real asset to the State of Connecticut and lemon law victims in our country as amply demonstrated by his service with the International Association of Lemon Law Administrators. As the author of our country's first Lemon Law, I enjoyed the privilege of working with Mark, and I will always have great respect for him and his work.
