“ Roy and I were best friends when he lived in Bristol during the late 1970s. When he moved back home in Simsbury, we lost track of each other. He did bring his father's Ford Wagon down to visit me a few times. I moved from place to place and that made it difficult to stay in touch. I always meant to call him to see how his life was going. I am sorry now that I didn't. I am so sorry that he died so young. We were the same age. May he forever rest in peace...

The Roy I knew was a great person. He was kind to everyone.
