“ Hi Mom,

Well Christmas is over, our first without you and Justin. Joe and the kids put up a Christmas tree at the house. They did a really nice job, you would have liked it. It was so strange, this is the first time in so many years that we didn't do your tree or put out all the decorations that you loved so much. But, then, we didn't do a tree or any decorations at our house either. I'm glad Joe did it though. Joe's family, Diane's family and Juany with Diana and Vinny all went to the house on Christmas Eve. It sounds like they had a good time. They sat around and talked until late into the night. I was hoping that they would get together. I think everyone needed to be at home for the holidays one last time. I know people were upset with me because we went away. We didn't go on vacation, we had an escape from reality, and we needed it more than anyone could ever understand, other than Diane. Unfortunately she understands all too well. I love you and miss you so much. Tell Dad, Jimmy and Angelo I love them too. Don't worry about telling Justin, I tell him all day and every night.

Love Jill

“ Mom, Grandma

I have known you for 33 years and was always amazed at how strong and intelligent person you were. You always seemed to have a solution or an idea on how to resolve pretty much anything. You never asked anyone for anything, infact you always wanted to give something to anyone who would visit. You always made sure that coffee was made and usually had some kind of snack available. All you ever wanted in return was someone to visit with you and talk.

Yes, sometimes you would yell a bit, probably needed to vent, but usually after a few minutes you were very pleasant company. Even though you were in obvious pain many times, you always came to our house for all occasions.

You were extremely devoted to dad for all those years – that took a big toll on you but you bounced right back.

We will miss our Tuesday nights visiting with you and Kemo.

Please take care of Justin for us.

We love you and will miss you very much.

Eric
